

The FCC should not implement any proposal which would lessen the protection offered by Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law. I enjoy not having to answer the phone several times a week only to discover the caller is trying to sell something I am not interested in. After I told family, friends and all my co-workers about the privacy law website, EVERYONE asked me to sign them up. They ALL commented later on how well it worked. Some of them even told their family members who also wanted to be signed up. I don't know ANYONE who appreciates the telemarketers.
